

Is it God who is calling Me?

How do you recognize the movement of the spirit in your heart? The Catholic faith calls the process “discernment.” It’s your decision, but you owe it to yourself to get honest and truthful information so you get it right.

“Our hearts are restless, O Lord,
until they rest in you.”

—St. Augustine of Hippo

Is the Catholic Church for Me?

Maybe this is a question you have been asking yourself for a while now. Answers sometimes come dramatically, but more often the answers come through careful study and a good deal of soul searching. We can help. Give us a call at the parish office. We’re looking forward to meeting you!

Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults

Better to light one candle than to curse the darkness.

—The Christophers

or knew those who did. From its infancy, the Church has called the teaching by its Greek name, catechesis, or “echoing” of the faith to the newcomer.

Since the 1970s, at the time of the Second Vatican Council, the process of catechesis for those wanting to learn more about the Catholic faith has been called the Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults or RCIA for short. This process formalizes the training and makes universal the experience. It relies heavily on way this work was done in the first centuries.

The Catholic Church has always offered methods for people who were not Catholic to learn more about the Catholic faith. In the earliest days of the Church, from the time of the apostles, the faith has been spread through the teaching and the witness of those who knew Jesus personally

Stages in RCIA

RCIA follows the movement of the spirit in the heart of the participant, and it is this movement that truly is the RCIA journey. The highpoint, but certainly not the endpoint, takes place at Easter. As the newcomers and the RCIA team journey together towards this goal, we undergo several “stages”. Let’s talk about each of these stages based on what the newcomers are called at each stage.

Inquirer

The first stage is one where your earliest questions are answered. Some examples might be: Why do Catholics kneel, stand and sit so much? Why are there statues in in the church and on the grounds? Ultimately, you will learn what Catholics believe about God, about humanity and about themselves.

Catechumen

During the second stage of the RCIA process, peo-

Father Loreto “Bong” Rojas blesses palms on Palm Sunday, the beginning of Holy Week. At Easter Vigil initiates from RCIA become new Catholics.

ple are called either catechumen or candidates, depending upon whether or not they are baptized. During this stage, we go deeper into the creed, liturgy and sacraments of the Catholic faith.

Elect

The third stage of the RCIA process begins forty days before Easter and includes a concentrated time of prayer and learning. It focuses on morality and how one lives his or her life according to the beliefs of a Catholic. It culminates in the events of the holiest week in the Catholic calendar, the week preceding and including Easter Sunday.

Neophyte

This stage of the RCIA process begins after Easter and is open ended. It addresses the basic question: Now what? And gives the newly baptized the impetus to become the new person, grounded in faith, that God has called them to be.
